

Save the Date

March 21, 2007

A Celebration of Life
National Native HIV/AIDS Awareness Day

The design for this Pendleton blanket as well as the March 21st National Native HIV/AIDS Awareness Day are collaborative efforts between Colorado State University's Center for Applied Studies in American Ethnicity, Inter Tribal Council of Arizona, and the National Native American AIDS Prevention Center. For purchase information please call 800-642-0273.

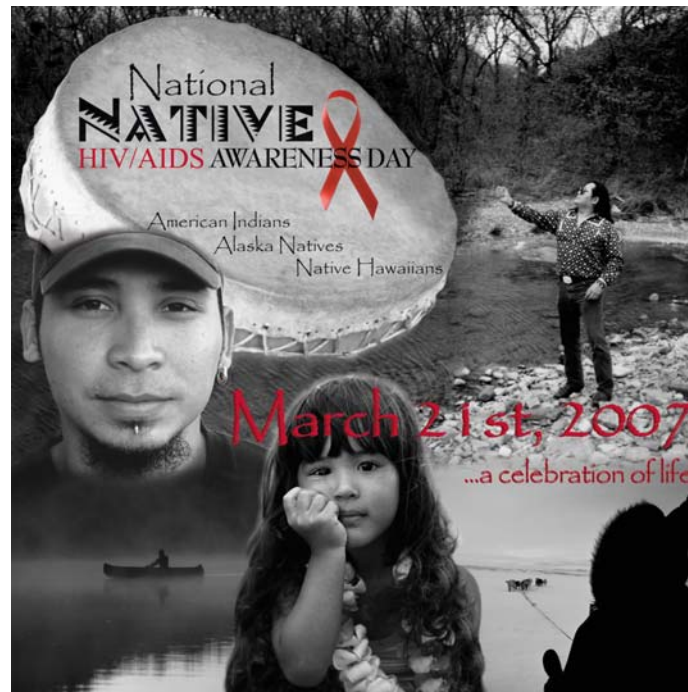

For more information, please visit or call:

www.NNAAPC.org - 510.444.2051

www.happ.colostate.edu - 800.642.0273

www.itcaonline.com/nshapp - 602.258.4822

The four seasons are highly respected in many cultures because they so closely represent the cycle of life. Spring represents a time of equality and balance. It is a time of profound change, new beginnings, and birth. We hope this date will raise awareness of HIV/AIDS among Native people – Native Americans, Native Alaskans, and Native Hawaiians – Protect our future, “Protect Our People” and Celebrate Life!